--- Notice regarding the future of the Vroom Project ---

Dear Customers,

Thank you for your continued support.

In response to the result of our Kickstarter campaign, we have decided to make some changes to the Vroom project.

Our main goal for now is to continue with efforts to make the SDK open source.

The smartphone VR controller will remain a vital component of our business, and we will continue both hardware and software research & development in this area.

We will also continue developing games for the platform, and in the beginning of next year will announce more detailed information regarding the future of the project.

To keep up to date with our progress, we ask that you join our mailing list by sending an email to the below address.

Thank you again for your support and please join us in looking forward to the future of Vroom and smartphone VR.

Sincerely,
Katsuyoshi Kitamura
